

'Best Vegas Attractions' Offers Some Discounts But Hopefully More Are To Come

A new marketing partnership among a handful or so of Las Vegas attractions spells potential discounts for visitors to Vegas.

Best Vegas Attractions is, more than anything, a promotional consortium to help participating attractions get word out about their offerings, but regular consumers do stand to benefit.

Like we mentioned, there aren't a ton of partner attractions involved at this point, but that could change. Right now, discounts are available at "Bodies...The Exhibition" and "Titanic: The Artifact Exhibition" at the Luxor; Papillon Grand Canyon Helicopters, Grand Canyon Airlines, the Hard Rock Café and Madame Tussauds at the Venetian. There's also a 2-for-1 shuttle voucher for the Fashion Outlets Las Vegas, located at the Nevada-California border about 40 minutes from the Strip. To redeem this voucher, though, you must present a valid Las Vegas Monorail ticket.

Some of the discounts are better than others. For example, we've always had a hard time understanding the fascination with the grisly "Bodies" exhibition. Yet somehow they command a whopping $31 for an adult admission, and the Best Vegas discount only gets you $2 off that price. Madame Tussauds is a slightly less startling $25 standard adult admission, and Best Vegas gets you a full $6 discount. Meanwhile, you can get $50 off a Papillon helicopter excursion to the Grand Canyon. Normal price for an early-morning flight this week: $264. At the Hard Rock Café, you get $5 off your bill of $25 or more and “preferred seating,” whatever that might be.

You might try asking your hotel concierge for the Best Vegas Attractions discount booklet at your hotel, or you can just download a PDF of the offers off their Web site.
